

Meet Rev. Drew West

Drew West and his wife Amanda are originally from Colorado (though Amanda is the true “native”). Drew and Amanda moved to Georgia in 2018 after living for four years in Lusaka, Zambia. In Zambia, Drew completed a bachelor’s degree in theology from Justo Mwale University while Amanda worked for Mennonite Central Committee (though neither of them are Mennonites!). Drew and Amanda have two children: Lillian who is six, and Oliver who is two. Drew is currently a student at Emory University’s Candler School of Theology where he will graduate in May with a master’s in divinity. Drew has served as a local licensed pastor in North Georgia since 2021 and has worked a wide array of ministry positions inside and outside of the local church before being becoming a pastor. Drew loves to get outside, drink tea, and listen to music. He has a podcast titled, “Slow Faith with Drew West.”
